Organizational History

The California Democratic Council (CDC) was founded in 1953 by a group of concerned Democrats. They were galvanized by State Senator George Miller, Jr., who called a meeting in Asilomar to discuss "What's wrong with the Democratic Party in California." In the early 1950s, even though the majority of California voters were registered Democrats, there had only been one Democratic Governor in the 20th Century and the Republicans held the majority in both houses of the Legislature, and a total of 111 out of the 162 elective, partisan offices in the state. The CDC was created as a link between the volunteer democratic clubs and district councils, and the official party structure (State and County Central Committees and elected officials). Besides encouraging membership in the local clubs, one of the CDC's primary responsibilities was to arrange for pre-primary endorsements of candidates (which the Central Committees were not allowed to do). This was needed to cut down on problems caused by the cross-filing of Republican candidates in Democratic primaries and divisive primary campaigns that carried over to the general election and allowed the Republican candidate to win the seat.

The CDC's first convention was held, November 1953, in Fresno. Alan Cranston (later State Controller and then U.S. Senator from California) was elected the first President, serving until 1957. The CDC began seeing improvements immediately, and, by 1958, there were more than 500 local clubs with almost 40,000 members, and even more importantly the Democrats had gained dominance in elected positions, in many cases reversing the 1952 numbers: eleven Democratic to 29 Republican State Senators in 1952 to 28 Democrats and 12 Republicans in 1958. For statewide offices the numbers switched from 2 Democrats and 10 Republicans in 1952 to 10 Democrats and 2 Republicans by 1958.

In 1957 the CDC organized a Resolutions Committee to increase the grass-roots influence on party platforms and policies and in 1959 held the first "full-blown" issues conference as the center of the annual convention, where small groups "discussed topics ranging from nuclear fission to election reform law." This successful format was repeated in 1960, while the 1961 convention focused on "Organization." Club membership and convention attendance continued to increase into the early 1960s (with 60,000 members and 2300 delegates in 1962); convention attendance began to decrease in the later 1960s.

The CDC was involved in a number of civil rights issues: promoting Black and Brown Caucuses, pressing the president in 1963 to appoint Mexican-Americans to government positions, calling for the seating of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party Delegation at the 1964 Democratic National Convention, and direct and economic support of Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers in 1966. The CDC also took a stand on the Vietnam War, calling for a "political settlement" in 1965. After President Johnson failed to remove US troops by September 1967, the CDC held a Special Convention in Long Beach where they decided to run a Peace and Equality Slate. CDC President Joseph Wyatt is credited with being instrumental in convincing Eugene McCarthy to join the 1968 Presidential race. Martin Luther King Jr., graced the 1968 Convention with a speech just three weeks before his assassination. The CDC's Women's Caucus started in 1968 and the CDC was one of the first Democratic groups to recognize a Gay Caucus (1972). In 1969 the board of directors added five positions, giving representation to women, youth, labor, Black and Brown caucuses. However, it was not until 1975 that a woman (Wallace Albertson) was elected CDC President. Albertson served until 1981.

The CDC has remained active over the years as the progressive voice in Democratic Party politics. In 2001 they honored the memory of their first President Alan Cranston at the annual dinner at the May convention.

Scope and Content

The California Democratic Council (CDC) Records contain correspondence, minutes, membership, business and subject files, newsletters, flyers, pamphlets, periodicals, photographs, pins and other miscellaneous items representing the activities of the CDC and various local Democratic Clubs. These are not the official records of the organization but they do present a sense of the nature of the organization, its activities, controversies, and constituents.

The CDC Records have been compiled from materials donated by a number of different donors at various times, mostly without documentation. Saul and Gertrude Reider and Emil and Tassia Freed donated the bulk of the materials. Other possible donors are Gary Alexander, David Seidman, Charlene Daughterty, Marvin Schachter, Wallace Albertson, and Ross Clark. Except for the files that are now the Office Files subseries and the Field Representatives subseries of the Administration Series and the bulk of the Credentials Committee subseries of the Committees/Caucuses Series, the material was mostly unarranged and compiled from more than one donation.

The bulk of the CDC Records date from the 1960s and 1970s, though some earlier and later material is also available. Incomplete Board of Directors' Minutes exist from 1957-1980, as do files on the 5th through the 32nd Conventions (1957-1984) and the 1959-1972 Issues Conferences. Information on the activities of Local Clubs and Regional Councils range from single flyers or newsletters to the extensive files on the Alta Loma Democratic Club (1963-1983) and the West Beverly Democratic Club (1956-1971), which include minutes, correspondence and other materials.

Of special note is the text of the March 16, 1968 Martin Luther King Jr. speech to the CDC Annual Convention.

Arrangement

The collection is divided into 8 series: 1. Board of Directors, 2. Administrative Files, 3. Committees and Caucuses, 4. Local Clubs and Regional Councils, 5. Events, 6. Publications, 7. Photographs, and 8. Miscellaneous.

Separated Material

A number of periodicals and pamphlets from this collection were added to the Library's Pamphlet and Periodical holdings. See Related Materials for periodicals titles.

This subseries includes correspondence, bills, financial statements, reports, subject files, and other materials that appear to have come from a CDC office. The materials were originally arranged in two slightly overlapping alphabetical runs (one set was missing the letters M-S). Of special interest are the various correspondence files (Barbara Double, Joyce Fadem, Roy Greenaway, Gerald Hill, Lorraine Lahr, Les River, Jim Scott, Jo Seidita, Lorry Sherman, Howard Sturman, Joyce Turney, Joe Wolf and Joseph L. Wyatt), the Samuel Yorty file that includes a copy of his pamphlet: "Why I Can't Take Kennedy," and the information from the Fallout Shelter Study Committee. Most of the material is serious, but don't miss the lovely booklet from the DNC's Office of Women's Activities, Decorating with Donkeys, which provides patterns and ideas for Democratic theme events.

Subseries F. Subject Files, 1957-1981*Physical Description: 1 legal boxScope and Content Note

This subseries includes files on a variety of subjects and activities including information on outside organizations similar to the materials found in the Office Files series but with less clear provenance. Of special interest are two Amicus Curiae Briefs filed by the CDC. Joel Fort vs. Civil Service Commission of Alameda supports county employee Fort's right to do volunteer work for a partisan campaign. Philip Adams, Edward Napier Thomas and Roland Adickes vs. Edmund G. Brown & Franklin M. Jordan provides suggestions on the proper apportionment of State Senate Districts for the 1966 elections and supplies a suggested Reapportionment Plan. Also of note are a file on the introduction of the Votronic Electronic Voting Machines, and an essay An Appeal to Reason to My Fellow Citizens written by an 72 year-old citizen who explains his opinions on the issues of the current (1968) presidential election and explains why he has finally decided to support Hubert Humphrey. The author of a folder of handwritten and typed notes on political issues is unidentified, but was probably written by Saul Reider. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

Series 3. Committees and Caucuses, 1955-1981*Physical Description: 5 boxes and 3 foldersScope and Content Note

This series contains materials generated by the committees and caucuses that do much of the actual work of the CDC. The bulk of the committees are listed alphabetically in the first subseries. Because there is so much material from the Credentials Committee related to memberships in specific clubs and the accreditation of delegates to conventions, it has been given its own subseries. See also similar materials in the Office Files subseries of the Administration Series for other committee records.

Subseries A. Alphabetical Files, 1955-1981*Physical Description: 3 legal boxes and 10 legal foldersScope and Content Note

This subseries includes materials created by many of the committees and caucuses that made up the CDC. The committees formed major working groups that planned events and explored a variety of issues both internal and external (from bylaws to election reform and foreign policy). Of special interest is the Report from the Special Study Committee on Fallout Shelters, and materials from the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party Liaison Committee. For information on convention activities and planning see the Issues and Resolutions Committees, as well as the Convention Planning Committees materials. CDC Caucuses represented the interests of various subgroups of the CDC. Materials are included from the Women's, Liberal and Gay Caucuses. For information on a controversy within the Brown Caucus see the Executive Board -Perez-Medina Hearing folder in the Office Files subseries of the Administration Series.

This series includes flyers, newsletters, minutes, correspondence and other materials created by or connected with specific individual clubs or regional organizations (Assembly or Congressional District Councils, Regional groups, Young Democrat coalitions, and other multi-club umbrellas). The Local clubs are listed alphabetically by club name. The title of their newsletter is also listed, if at least one copy is included. The Assembly district materials are arranged numerically with separate folders only for those with the largest amount of material.

Many of the Club files contain single or scattered items. Extensive records, including minutes, correspondence and other materials, exist for two clubs: the Alta Loma Democratic Club (1969-1981), and the West Beverly Democratic Club (1956-1969). The West Beverly material includes an especially extensive run of the West Beverly Bray Newsletter (1955-1971). Materials from several San Francisco Gay Democratic Clubs have been combined in one folder (also see the Gay Democrat in the Multi-group Projects folder). The Regional materials are much sketchier.
